ANÁLISIS ARTÍSTICO

See Young woman with forehead wearing a small hat.

With rapid strokes, the Aragonese painter sketched a woman profile who, with both hands, pulls up one of the stockings covering her legs. This may be considered a first idea for Caprice 17. Well pulled, , in which he maintains the same pose of the young woman leaning on the bed and placing her foot on a basin, which in the print will become a brazier. Her face is in shadow, something that is also evident in the engraving, although this one includes an old woman who observes the scene with an air of absorption. It is a very luminous drawing in which Goya leaves large white surfaces on the paper. The volumes are generated from lines drawn with the tip of a brush dipped in a very light wash.

On the front of the sheet is the drawing Young Woman Raising Her Arms.
